Parents are also entitled to a share which is usually 1/6th of the estate. You may also leave up to one-third of your estate to beneficiaries not automatically entitled under Shariah. Please also confirm whether you wish to leave any monies to charities or to beneficiaries who receive no automatic entitlement under Shariah, (ie friends, brothers and sisters).

PART K. Miscellaneous

Please provide details of any matters not covered by the above sections which you consider may be relevant. Please continue on a separate page if necessary, and attach it to the end of this questionnaire.

PART L. Notes

1. A Will is usually automatically revoked if you marry after making it. You will need to make another Will immediately, or one which takes a forthcoming marriage into account.
2. On divorce, gifts to your former spouse are cancelled as is their appointment as executor. However, the rest of the Will stands. This can often create problems and it is better to make a new Will.
3. If you do not make "reasonable" provision for a partner, a former partner or any other person who is financially dependent upon you, it is possible that they could make a claim against your estate. If this does apply please seek further advice from us.
4. Illegitimate and adopted children (but not stepchildren) generally have the same rights of inheritance as other children, under English law but not under Shariah Law.
5. As stated in note 3 above, children excluded from benefiting under your Will may have a right to claim a share of your property in certain circumstances. Please ask for advice if appropriate.
6. Please feel free to ask for our help or advice or more information on any topic related to your Will during your appointment.
